BOON DEE'S NEW LIFE

Millions of people take selfies while, riding elephants, washing them, or patting their trunks. Because of this elephants are forcefully taken from the forests. They are kept in "severely cruel" conditions just for our entertainment.

Elephant rides make us happy. In reality, this "attraction" (activity) is painful and dangerous for them.

This story is about an elephant named 'Boon Dee'. She was half-blind. Boon Dee was forced to work very hard all day long. Every day she use to give rides to tourists at a trekking camp in Pattaya, Thailand. She suffered the pain for four long years. Due to the poor treatment, she had become very thin. She had swollen spots all over her body. Boon Dee had also turned half-blind.

A team of volunteers from the Wildlife Friends Foundation Thailand (WFFT) Elephant Refuge came to help this gentle elephant. This team gave her the medical attention. Boon Dee is now a member of the herd at the WFFT Elephant Refuge. She is now free from all the troubles pain and suffering.

Now she can play around and splash in the water whenever she wants. Boon Dee is very happy in her new home at the refuge.

Boon Dee has been brought together with Gan Da. Gan Da is another saved elephant from the pain. She was friends with Boon Dee long time ago. The two were placed in a camp in Chiang Rai together.

Never again will Boon Dee be tied with a chain or beaten. Never again will she have to carry tourists on her back and give them rides all day long.
